Sixth of a Series of Interesting Articles by

PROF. J. KIMBER GRIMM

Many Points of Interest Within the Confines of Yellowstone National Park.

Yellowstone Park has extended its charms to many thousands of the fortunate who have been within its bounds. It seldom fails to so saturate the tourist with an enthusiasm that radiates outward toward the many friendships, and impels a long-lingering desire within thousands more to see, touch, feel and be satisfied that the facts given are real. The Park Trip is not a fake trip unless the senses of the visitor be dead. The first hour spent within the area of the various terraces should startle the senses of the most indifferent.

We were guided to the entrance of the Devil's Kitchen, and soon were making our way into the crater of an extinct hot spring 78 feet deep and about 100 feet long. This was no ordinary cave. The peculiar damp and heated atmosphere of the interior produced a queer sensation and the desire to seek fresh air at once came over the visitor. The excessive temperature was not measured; but in spite of the heat, the camera, by means of a flashlight, secured an instantaneous record for our future pleasure.

A few minutes more and an altitude of 6,635 feet brought us in close contact with the many gophers that spotted the bank. Snow-covered Bunsen Peak lay ahead, while around us we recognized our eastern Yarrow, Wild Rose, Lupine, Strawberries and a new plant, the Quaking Ash. The hoodoos were passed and with them a barren waste, then, four miles from the Kitchen appears the Golden Gate, so named from the mass of yellow that covers the rocky walls of the pass scarcely a mile in length, yet costing $14,000 to build. The sides of the pass present rocky walls rising from 200 to 300 feet in air, and to this spot a charm is added by the Rustic Falls fed by a branch of the Gardner River. The fall is some sixty feet high, the water disappearing from the moss-covered ledge beneath the rock waste at its base.

Open Meeting of K. of P.

Monday night Bedford Lodge, No. 426, K. of P., held an interesting meeting. After the routine business was transacted, the meeting was thrown open to friends of the order who had been invited by members to be present. A goodly number were present, and were addressed by Grand Chancellor Commander George Hoffman of Philadelphia and by Past Grand Chancellor Commander H. Oscar Kline of Pittsburg, a member of the local lodge, and who organized Bedford Lodge in September, 1874.

Mr. Hoffman told how and why the Knights of Pythias was organized, and of the strong fraternal principles which bind the members together, and of the works of charity it has performed during its existence.

Mr. Kline's address pertained chiefly to the local lodge. He told of the long session held on the night of institution, and of the men who were there on that occasion.

Remarks were made by a number of the Bedford Lodge members, after which the assemblage went to Allen's restaurant, and partook of a delicious feast prepared for the occasion.

SOLDIERS' REUNION

Two Hundred Veterans Listened to Address by

REV. EDWARD F. REIMER

In Court House on Flag Day at Meeting of County Veterans' Association—Other Addresses.

The annual meeting of the Bedford County Veterans' Association here last Friday was a most enjoyable occasion. About 200 of the veterans of the county were present and with friends filled the Court House to its utmost capacity.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Robert C. Smith of Point, and the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. H. E. Wieand of Trinity Lutheran Church. The feature of the forenoon session was an address by Rev. E. F. Reimer of Easton, former pastor of Bedford Presbyterian Church, which address is herewith printed in full.

A pamphlet containing the names of all soldiers buried in the county and giving their resting places, was presented to the veterans by The Gazette.

The afternoon session was taken up largely with the business of the Association. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, M. D. Barndollar, Everett.

Vice President, Capt. Josiah Hissong, Point.

Secretary, Alex. Prosser, Six Mile Run.

Treasurer, W. B. Filler, Rainsburg.

Chaplain, A. B. Bowen, Everett.

The business completed, addresses were made by Dr. Americus Enfield, Hon. J. H. Longenecker, Hon. Eli Eichelberger, Rev. John H. Barney, Frank McCoy and others.

The Association adjourned to meet in Bedford on Flag Day next year.

Rev. Reimer's Address

Soldiers, Citizens, Friends:

Today we have met within these walls, which have witnessed many a forensic struggle, to lay the laurel of a nation's undying esteem and appreciation upon the brow of the soldiers and heroes who endured the brunt of a larger and a civil strife to give to us the inestimable boon of national unity and national integrity. I am not insensible to the mutual dis-appointment of this hour in the absence of him to whose coming we had looked forward with confidence, who, by the wealth of his experience, by his intimacy of acquaintance with the men of this county, by his training in the art of public speech whereby he is able to move the souls of men as the reed is swayed by the zephyrs of the eventide and to hold his hearers in the very hollow of his hand, is especially fitted to speak words suitable to an hour like this. But there is kindness upon your faces, and you will bear with me for a little while, a plain man with homely speech, with no sentences of particular beauty and no words of peculiar grace, while I recall for you some of the things which enter into a soldier's memories and a nation's regard. Like Antony over the body of the great Caesar:

"I have neither wit, nor words, nor worth, Action, nor utterance, nor the power of speech, To stir men's blood: I only speak right on; I tell you that which you yourselves do know, Show you sweet Caesar's wounds, poor, poor dumb mouths, And bid them speak for me."

And so we may keep step, you and I, for a little while today, look into the storied riches of a treasured past, sorrow over those who have caught the imperative summons of their last taps and have said "Good-Night" to the friends and scenes of home and earth, and make high vows together concerning our love and our loyalty to this dear land of ours.

We look into your faces today and we regard you as men who are rich with many a precious memory. This is a day of reunion, but more largely it is a day in which you are held in the grip of a thousand soldiers' memories. Memory will tell you that the land was filled with quietness and the hearts of all men were at peace. Peace flowed like a mighty river over all the length and breadth of the land. The whirr of flying shaft and revolving wheel and the low music of busy industries filled the North, while the rhythmic rise and fall of the plantation songs of the slaves in the

S. S. CONVENTION

Report of the Nineteenth Annual Meeting of the

COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Held in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Hyndman, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 4 and 5.

The Nineteenth Annual Convention of the Bedford County Sunday School Association was held in Hyndman M. E. Church on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 4 and 5. Immediately after the arrival of the morning train on Tuesday the delegations proceeded to the church, where the first session was called to order at 11 o'clock by County President William S. Lysinger, and the delegates joined in singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Rev. D. A. Foard, pastor of the M. E. Church, then conducted the devotional services. Greetings were extended to those in attendance by M. H. Kramer of Hyndman, Vice President of the Association, and the response was made by Rev. H. E. Wieand, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Bedford. The entertainment committee then took charge and assigned those present to their places of entertainment.

Tuesday afternoon the convention was called to order at 1:30 o'clock and opened by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." An hour's devotional service was held under the leadership of Rev. W. J. Sheaffer of the Everett M. E. Church. The Secretary then read the minutes of last year's convention and the same were approved. President Lysinger then appointed the following committees: Nomination—D. W. Rhodes, Daniel Barkman, Allen Eichelberger, S. T. Taylor and Mrs. M. C. Sparks.

Resolutions—Rev. E. M. Adair, Rev. F. J. Matter, Rev. M. C. Flegal, Miss Mary Way, Mrs. Gussie Andrews.

Enrollment—J. W. Price, Ira Karns, D. N. Byers.

Auditing—Dr. J. G. Candler, Jesse Lowry, J. C. Roberts.

The convention then divided into conferences at the different churches as follows:

BIG FOURTH AT BEDFORD

Parade, Bands, Races, Sham Battle, Baseball and Other Amusements.

Oklahoma Tribe, No. 414, Improved Order of Red Men, have secured able speakers from the Grand Council of Pennsylvania to make the addresses at the Fair Grounds on the Fourth of July. Local speakers will also be present. Reports come from all sides that large delegations will attend. The celebration is attracting attention and a crowd is assured. The parade of the local and visiting tribes in Indian costume is scheduled to form at the depot at 10 o'clock. In the procession will be bands, cowboys mounted on ponies, Indians in full dress and other attractive features.

The morning will be devoted to addresses, interesting both to the Order and to the public. The afternoon will be devoted to general amusements. Trotting, pacing and cowboy races promise to be exciting. Horses with established records will be entered in these races. The Red Men have organized for a sham battle. A reproduction of old Indian warfare will be given. This is creating much interest and will be worth seeing. Baseball, together with many minor amusements, forms part of the program. Eating stands at which dinner and supper may be had have been provided for those who will spend the entire day on the grounds. A large platform will be erected upon which nine fiddlers will furnish the good old-time music for the Indian Dance. The early evening will be occupied by amusements around and about the camp fires.

This is not an exclusive affair. The public will be given an opportunity to see it.

Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory The exercises connected with the exhibit of the Industrial Department, and the close of the present term of the Reformatory Schools, at Huntingdon, will be held on Thursday, June 27, at 2 and 7:30 p. m.

These exercises are open to the public, and a cordial invitation extended to all who may wish to attend to do so.

Marriage Licenses

Richard DeCharmes Brown and Ruth Anna Feather, of Pavia.

Charley Singer of Six Mile Run and Elizabeth Hunter of Philipsburg.

STATE BANKERS

Hold Annual Convention of Their Association at

BEDFORD SPRINGS HOTEL

Musical and Vaudeville Furnish Amusement—Golf Links and Tennis Courts Occupied.

Over four hundred guests, mostly in attendance at the meeting of the State Bankers' Association, registered at Bedford Springs this week.

The convention opened Tuesday morning, the preceding evening having been taken up with a music entertainment given by a dozen Negro amateurs.

Golf and tennis tournaments were begun on Tuesday and furnished occupation for players and many observers, while others made up numerous bridge parties on the colonnade and the corridors; others strolled about the spacious halls, the beautiful lawns or upon the paths of the surrounding hills to the flag staff and to the observatory. The swimming pool, too, had much attraction.

While thus those not specially interested in the deliberations of the financiers were enjoying the outside the representatives of banking institutions carried out their program. President A. J. Hazeltine of Warren delivered the opening address Tuesday morning and Edward A. Woods of Pittsburgh discussed "The Use of Life Insurance in Bank Credit." The Secretary, Treasurer and various committees made their reports.

During the afternoon the Eastern bankers were defeated by the Western money handlers in an interesting ball game, score 27-4.

A vaudeville entertainment was enjoyed by the bankers and their parties and other guests Tuesday night, followed by a Dutch lunch and an informal smoker.

The association closed its convention Wednesday forenoon, after listening to addresses by William Livingston of Detroit, president of the American Bankers' Association; B. F. Harris of Champaign, Ill., president of the Illinois Bankers' Association, on "The Banker and His Relation to the Public Welfare," and L. W. Gannon of New York, who discussed "The Protection of Banks," in the absence of William J. Burns, to whom that subject had been assigned.

The following officers were elected: President, A. S. Beymer, Pittsburgh; Vice President, Montgomery Evans, Norristown; Secretary, D. S. Kloss, Tyrone, (re-elected); Treasurer, A. D. Swift, Ridgway.

The selection of the time and place for the next annual meeting was referred to a committee.

The bankers were well pleased with their visit and were enthusiastic in praise of their entertainment. "The buildings and grounds were never more beautiful," said a Pittsburgh financier; "I have come here many seasons but never enjoyed a former visit so much as this one."

KILLED IN CHURCH

John F. Dinan Meets Death From Crush of Steeple.

A tornado caused the steeple of St. Thomas Catholic Church, Zanesville, O., to crash through the roof on Sunday, killing Rev. Father F. R. Roach and Thomas Skinion and so injuring John F. Dinan, nephew of S. J. Mattingly of near Bedford, that he died two hours later in a hospital.

Mr. Dinan leaves a wife and three small children. A couple years ago a brother was drowned and when the two sons were small the father died from the effects of being kicked by a horse. The sorrowing mother alone survives of the family of four.

Mr. Dinan had visited his uncle here.

John Wakefoose

John Wakefoose died at his home in Bedford on Saturday, June 8, from a complication of diseases, aged 58 years, one month and 29 days. He was united in marriage with Sadie King, who died August 5, 1910. One son and three daughters survive: Henry J. and Etie E., at home, Mrs. Nathan Grubb of Clearville and Mrs. Frank Mock of Bedford. The following brothers and sisters are also living: George Wakefoose of Bedford, Josiah Wakefoose, Mrs. Daniel Fetter and Mrs. J. U. Jackson, of Everett.

The funeral services were conducted in St. Thomas' Catholic Church Tuesday morning, June 11. Interment was made in Catholic Cemetery.

TAFT IN CONTROL

At the Republican National Convention at Chicago

ROOSEVELT WILL BOLT

This Course Determined Upon at 12 O'clock Wednesday Night—Credentials Committee Obnoxious.

The drop of the gavel in the hands of the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, which called to order on Tuesday the Republican National Convention at Chicago, was the signal for the beginning of the real battle between President Taft and Theodore Roosevelt and their followers—a fight which many predict will wreck a political party which has lived for three score years and more and during that time has almost continuously been in charge of the affairs of the Government of the United States.

The unusual and in some respects disgraceful canvass for delegates to the nominating convention at Chicago is over and the strength of the contestants has twice been measured and all the surrounding circumstances point to the nomination of President Taft and the bolting of Colonel Roosevelt.

The first test of strength was made when the vote of the delegates was taken for Temporary Chairman. The Administration forces had centered upon Elihu Root and the Roosevelt cohorts favored Governor McGovern; the result of the vote was 558 to 502 in favor of Root, and the Taft delegates were in control, as the Temporary Chairman had the appointing of the Committee on Credentials.

The second test came when the vote was taken on a motion to table a motion to substitute the Roosevelt roll of delegates for the roll prepared by the National Committee. This vote resulted in the tabling of the motion to substitute 564 to 510, and showed clearly that the Taft forces continued in control; but "the straw that broke the camel's back," the point at which the Colonel and his followers thought "forbearance ceased to be a virtue" was reached when at midnight Wednesday information was brought to a mass meeting of Roosevelt delegates that the Credentials Committee would not receive evidence in contending cases. It was then that it was determined to bolt and to hold a rump convention at Orchestra Hall yesterday morning.

The meeting was in session for 20 minutes in which time Colonel Roosevelt made a flat declaration of his refusal to abide by the decision of the convention.

Every leader present was sent out at top speed to call together the members of his delegation. Megaphone announcements were made. Messengers were dispatched in every direction. In ten minutes every Roosevelt man in or near the Convention

Captain Taylor's Monument Moved The monument which has marked the resting place of Capt. Samuel Taylor in the Presbyterian Cemetery for many years was recently moved to Bedford Cemetery, where the remains will be placed this fall.

Captain Taylor was commander of the "Independent Grays" at the time of the breaking out of the Mexican War and in February 1847 the company was accepted and assigned to the Second Pennsylvania Regiment. The company, consisting of 80 men besides the officers, left Bedford on May 22, 1847. The soldiers were accompanied to Pittsburgh by the late Hon. William P. Schell and the late Josiah E. Barclay, where they were mustered into service on May 28.

Captain Taylor died in the City of Mexico after a brief illness on December 6, 1847, and his remains were brought to Bedford where they "reposed beneath the shadow of an appropriate and deserving monument," erected by loving relatives and friends, in the Presbyterian Cemetery, until the shaft's recent removal.

Henry Herring

Miss Bertha Blayne Herring, for several years teacher of elocution in the Central High School, Harrisburg, was married Saturday morning, June 15, at the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. S. E. Herring, of York, to Dr. W. P. S. Henry of Everett.

The bride's father performed the ceremony and immediately after a small informal reception, Dr. and Mrs. Henry left for a wedding trip to New York, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They will reside in Everett.

Home Department in M. E. Church, presided over by J. T. Matt.

Elementary Work in Central Christian Church, presided over by Miss Minnie Powell.

Adult Bible Class in Brethren Church, presided over by A. M. McClure.

Teacher Training in the Evangelical Church, Rev. F. J. Matter presiding.

These various conferences were well attended and many points of interest along these particular lines of work were brought out.

Tuesday evening's session opened at 7:30 o'clock with a half hour song service. Rev. J. C. Powell of the Hyndman Evangelical Church, conducted the devotional services, after which an address was made by Mrs. Maude J. Baldwin, State Elementary Worker. Among the many good things said by Mrs. Baldwin were the following: "Every church and community claims something from every boy and girl and in return every child has a right to be well born." "Every child has a right to a home—the right kind of a home. Too many mothers are good housekeepers rather than home-keepers." "A child has a right to be misunderstood and a child has the right to an apology."

W. D. Stem followed with an address on the Organized Adult Class. He said among other things that every man can be reached if the right man goes after him, in the right manner, at the right time. This session closed by singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," and the benediction by Rev. M. A. Kieffer of Everett.

At 6:15 Wednesday morning, a sunrise prayer-meeting was conducted under the leadership of Rev. Crouse of Centreville. Although held at an early hour, this meeting was well attended and much spiritual enthusiasm was shown.

The regular session Wednesday morning was opened at 9 o'clock, Rev. E. M. Adair of the Mann's Choice Reformed Church, leading the devotional service.

Vice President Kramer then took the chair and President Lysinger made his annual report. He reported 178 schools in the county, an increase of four during the year, and an increase of over 2,000 enrollment as well as increase along all lines. Districts 6, 9 and 12 reported payment in full of the per capita tax.

Mr. A. M. McClure, Superintendent of Adult Bible Classes, reported an increase from six to about 25 registered classes during the year, and many more organized but not registered.

Hon. John T. Matt, Superintendent of the Home Department, reported increased activity in his department.

"Graded Lessons" was presented by Mrs. Baldwin, who said that 85 per cent. of those who come into the church, come from the Sunday School, and only 17 per cent. or those who come into the Sunday School come into the church.

"The Qualified Teacher" was ably discussed by J. Anson Wright of Bedford.

"Teacher Training Class at the Sunday School Hour—How to Conduct It," was discussed by Rev. J. W. Zehring of Osterburg.

"The Home Department—Feeder to the Main School" was presented by S. H. Mickel of New Paris.

"The Organized Bible Class—Why and How to Organize" was discussed by Elias Gibson of Bedford.

Before the regular session opened Wednesday afternoon Mr. Stem made his closing address before the convention. Rev. M. C. Flegal, of Schellsburg conducted the devotional service. J. B. Swartz of the Reformed Synod made a brief address.

Mrs. D. L. Hetrick talked on "Developing the Social Side of the Adult Bible Class."

Rev. W. W. Willard of Riddesburg spoke on "Temperance—How to Create Greater Interest."

Miss Minnie Powell, Superintendent of Elementary Work, reported 102 Cradle Rolls in the county.

"Inter-Church Federation" was ably presented by Rev. M. A. Kieffer, Rev. H. E. Wiand and Hon. John T. Matt.

The committee on nominations then made its report and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, William S. Lysinger.

Vice Presidents, M. H. Kramer, Sylvester H. Mickel.

Recording Secretary, M. N. Stally.

Corresponding Secretary, J. Reed Irvine.

Statistical Secretary, J. W. Price.

Treasurer, D. M. Stoler.

Department Superintendents

Elementary, Miss Minnie Powell.

Home Department, Mrs. A. H. Whetstone.

Adult Bible Class, A. M. McClure.

Temperance, John T. Matt.

Teacher Training, Rev. J. C. Stayer.

The committee on enrollment re-

FALLING HAIR

Itching Scalp and Dandruff are Unnecessary.

If you want to prevent baldness, stop falling hair and itching scalp, and banish every trace of dandruff from your scalp, get a large 50 cent bottle of PARISIAN SAGE today.

You never used a more delightful hair dressing in all your life. Every drop in the bottle is filled with hair growing virtue.

PARISIAN SAGE causes the hair to grow profusely and imparts to it a luster and radiance that cannot fail to attract favorable comment.

It is guaranteed by F. W. Jordan to stop falling hair, itching scalp and dandruff, or money back. It kills the dandruff germ and keeps the hair full of life and youthful vigor. Large bottle 50 cents at F. W. Jordan's and druggists everywhere. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle and carton.

ported the following enrollment:

Pastors, 12; Superintendents, 16; other officers, 14; Home Department Superintendents, 2; teachers, beginners, 5; primary teachers, 7; junior teachers, 4; intermediate teachers, 12; adult teachers, 13; scholars, 112; total, 197.

Wednesday's evening's session opened at 7:30 o'clock with a song service and devotional services by Rev. J. A. Adams. The election of delegates to the state convention followed when thirty delegates, including the entire executive committee of the county were elected.

Resolutions

Then followed the report of the committee on resolutions which was as follows:

Whereas the Church of Jesus Christ, of every name and denomination, is reaching a higher point of toleration, of brotherhood and of love, and

Whereas the great teaching arm of the Church, the Sabbath School, has had a large part in this higher Christian development, and

Whereas eighty-five per cent. of the members of the Church come into the Church through the Sabbath School; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is with hearts filled with gratitude that we return our humble thanks to Almighty God, Father of all mercies, for all His goodness and loving kindness to us and to all men. God of all power and glory, we ascribe to Thee, all the power and success of the great Sabbath School movement; and

Resolved, That we call upon all the Sabbath Schools of all the denominations in Bedford County, to use each one of the opportunities and educational advantages offered to them by the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association for the betterment of their work and for the bringing of men, women and children into the kingdom of God; and

Resolved, That we return our thanks to Rev. D. A. Foard and the officers and people of the Hyndman M. E. Church for the use of their beautiful church for this convention and to the other churches for the use of their church buildings for the department conferences; and

Resolved, That we return our thanks to the choir for the excellent music; and

Resolved, That we return our thanks to the churches and people of Hyndman for their bountiful hospitality; and

Resolved, That we express to the officers of the past year our thanks for the untiring labor which has brought the Bedford County convention to a high state of excellence, and that we pledge to the officers elected for the coming year our best efforts to help them to greater success; and

Resolved, That we reaffirm our declaration of former years in favor of Temperance and the enforcement of law, and against that un-American institution, the American saloon, and pledge anew our loyalty to all public men who stand true to the right of the people to determine for themselves the question of saloon or no saloon; and

Resolved, That we express our thanks to Mrs. M. J. Baldwin, State Superintendent of Elementary Work; W. D. Stem, State Superintendent O. A. B. C.; J. B. Swartz, Reformed Church Sunday School Field Worker, and Hon. Oliver W. Stewart of New York City for their instructive and interesting addresses; and further

Resolved, That we approve of the plan of Church Federation and hereby pledge our efforts in behalf of the practical use of the plan.

Hon. Oliver W. Stewart of New York City then addressed the convention on "The Attitude of the Government Toward the Saloon." His address was interesting and forceful and held the close attention of the large audience for more than one hour. President William S. Lysinger then made a few remarks to the convention and the last session closed by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and the benediction by Rev. D. G. Hetrick.

Tuesday evening, after the regular session, the Teacher Training Alumni held a banquet at the Hyndman House. Twenty-four were present and all enjoyed the occasion.

M. N. Stally, Recording Secretary.

SEEING AMERICA

The horses were moving along slowly due to the grade. Our altitude was now 7,262 feet, and the sage brush odor helped the rider to feel a new environment in the midst of the Swan Lake Flats. Here roamed the White Clover, Buttercups, Purple Loam, Mullein, Shooting Star, that highly prized flower to the botanist, and Dandelion too was seen. Dense pines marked the Wiley Permanent Camp. The Indian Creek marked the camp of Shaw & Powell. Soon came ours, and 7 p. m. marked the close of the first day's pleasure, near Apollinaris Spring, at the end of a drive of fourteen miles.

While the tents were being pitched, we lingered about the spring. We drank, but did so cautiously. The analysis of the water and the taste forbade excess. Silicon, Sulphuric Acid, Bicarbonic Acid, Nitrous Acid, Chlorine, Iron, Aluminum, Calcium, Magnesium, Sodium and Potassium were supposed to be bubbling there clear and cool. Such a compound must either be poison or medicine. No one cared to experiment, although it was recommended as a tonic and an improver of general debility. The night was cool. The cook and the guide arranged to make merry and a pleasant evening prevailed.

Friday morning at 8:30 we were off again passing Obsidian Cliff, made up of pentagonal shaped blocks rising 250 feet from the road and bordering our path for at least 1,000 feet. One great mass of black, glassy rock from which was made the roadway, not by blasing, for such was impossible; but by building great fires against the mass, which, when expanded was suddenly cooled by dashing water upon it, resulting in shattering the substance into small fragments. Here is the only piece of glass roadway in the world, where the Indians once chiseled their arrowheads. Beaver Lake constructed by the beavers building a dam a quarter of a mile in width led us from geology to "Zoo." Numerous waterfowl kept company with the flat-tailed engineers; but soon to the left the Roaring Mountain proved its name. Then the "bottomless" Twin Lakes so gorgeously colored with green and blue absolutely drive any thought of monotony far away. Bijah's Black Spring and the greasy Frying Pan were also by our side.

We were anxiously waiting the geysers, the freaks of nature. The Norris Geyser Basin, discovered by Col. P. W. Norris, superintendent of the Park in 1875, presented this land of enchantment. An area of six square miles without a speck of green, in the shape of a basin, included many spots of activity. A sense of fear arose as we passed over the trail, which seemed to be but a thin crust of carbonates, steam, enveloping the party as we moved along. It was tempting to bathe in the Bath Tub; but the hissing of escaping steam and unpleasant odors round about, excited a feeling of caution. Much has been written upon this area, and much may still be said; but other things attracted our horses and ourselves as well and all were soon in camp at noon. Had we cared to, much rich brown chocolate might have been secured from the Chocolate Pot as we drove by the side of the Gibbon River.

The afternoon brought out the groundhogs, bold and firm, and many were passed until we came to a lonely pine growing from the summit of a lonely rock, apparently as solid as nature could make it. Beryl Hot Spring, the hottest in the Park, attracted our attention to the right, with an irresistible desire to thrust a hand into the water and learn by experience if it could be hot. Six miles of Gibbon Canon and the wagon stopped by the Iron Spring still rich-

There Are Other Bedford People Similarly Situated.

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Bedford residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question:

George C. Stiffler, 302 W. Pitt St., Bedford, Pa., says: "The hardships I endured while serving in the Civil War disordered my kidneys. I often had to get up during the night to pass the kidney secretions and my back ached constantly. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I procured a box and commenced taking them. It did not take them long to benefit me. Today I am in better health than I have been for years and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit." (Statement given October 14, 1907.)

Re-Endorsement

Mr. Stiffler was again interviewed by our representative and he added to the above: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did two years ago. I still use this remedy occasionally when my kidneys are not doing their work properly and I never fail to get benefit in a short time."

er in minerals than Apollinaris. And as usual, our attention was diverted again to the beautiful falls 200 feet high formed by the Gibbon River. Here we sat and looked and gazed at the beautiful landscapes shadowed by precipitous cliffs at places some 2,000 feet in height, and the numerous little puffs of steam arising from either bank. A succession of pine-clad terraces and the Falls of the Firehole again brought us to a halt. Here the trout were plentiful and the Scotchman was determined to try his luck. The driver patiently waited while more of us engaged in the sport and were successful in small measure, an inducement to fish along the stream while the wagon moved along as slowly. The transportation tourists envied this kind of sport as was evident by their vain appeal to drivers to halt "just for a minute," "till I see what he has, or 'what I can do.'" But they were scheduled, and were merely on-lookers as the coaches rolled by. That night we camped on the Nez Perces battlefield, having covered thirty-five miles that day. This was an interesting spot; but its interests will be given in another writing.

Getting Evidence.

The witnesses were at the Waterford assizes in a case which concerned long continued poultry stealing. As usual nothing could be got from them in the way of evidence until the nearly baffled prosecuting counsel asked in an angry tone of voice, "Will you swear on your soul, Pat Murphy, that Phady Hooligan has never to your knowledge stolen chickens?" The responsibility of this was too much even for Pat. "Bedad, I would hardly swear by my soul," he said, "but I do know that if I was a chicken and Phady was about I'd roost high!"—Life.

That great mystery of Time, were there no other; the illimitable, silent, never resting thing called Time rolling, rushing on, swift, silent, like an all-embracing ocean tide, on which we and all the universe swim like exhalations, like apparitions which are, and then are not; this is forever very literally a miracle; a thing to strike us dumb, for we have no word to speak about it.—Carlyle.

COVER CROPS WITH CORN

Relative Value of Cowpea, Soy Bean, Vetch, Clover, Etc.

For several years we have been working with various kinds of cover crops, seeding in corn at the time of the last cultivation. This work has included the use of cowpeas, soy beans, vetch and crimson clover, and also rape and rye.

The first four crops have the advantage of being nitrogen gatherers, where the seed is inoculated and the bacteria are established on the roots. Rape and rye do not gather nitrogen; they simply collect the plant food already in the soil and make it available as humus-making material for future crops.

Crimson clover falls with us about half the time. Vetch has winter-killed, in part, in a few cases last year; though it generally pulls through the winter in good shape. The first real frost kills the cowpea; but the soy bean keeps on growing until actual freezing weather sets in. Vetch, rape and rye all keep green until covered by snow.

In side by side tests we found that following vetch we could plow readily to full plow depth, and the ground broke up well with one thorough harrowing; the rye ground was hard below a depth of about three inches, plowed up cloddy, and required a good deal of work in fitting. The mechanical effect of the vetch was also noticed in the second year, that part of the field plowing better than any other. In this field vetch, rye, crimson clover and common clover were given a side by side test. Vetch proved far more valuable than any of the others.

In another side by side test cowpeas, soy beans and rape were used, the former two being inoculated. This seeding was made late in July. The cowpeas killed late in September by a comparatively light frost. The rape and soy beans continued their growth until November 10, when an unusually severe freeze destroyed them both; not, however, until they had made a surprisingly heavy growth for turning under. Considering the nitrogen gathering qualities of the soy bean, it showed superiority over rape in this test.

As between soy beans and vetch there are several points to consider. Vetch undoubtedly has a better mechanical effect on the ground; that is, it fills it better with fine, hair-like roots, makes plowing easy, and a splendid seed bed for the crop following, with little work in preparing that seed bed. On the other hand the soy bean roots deeper, and the whole plant decays more quickly than vetch, making the humus and nitrogen it supplies more quickly available than in the case of vetch. Repeatedly we have noted the immediate benefit of soy beans on the crop following, whether the beans were cut for feed, hogged down or turned under. The effect of vetch is apparently not so immediate, or is extended over a longer period of the rotation. And the last distinction between vetch and soy beans is in the matter of cost; soy beans for an acre of cover crop costing about $1.25 while vetch for an acre costs about $3.50.

Inoculated legumes (vetch, clover, cowpeas and soy beans) give more to the corn crop than they take from it. Some of the nitrogen they draw from the air becomes available for the corn as the bacteria slough off and decay; and this is particularly true during the very hot weather of August, when the bacteria fastened on the shallower roots die and decay, and bacterial activity moves deeper into the soil and subsoil. This condition is not true of rape or rye; the latter, particularly, coming into direct competition for plant food with the shallower roots of the corn. On some of our thin soils this competition might seriously interfere with the making of a good crop of corn. With inoculated legumes the corn is actually helped, and the cover crop a net gain, for whatever purpose it is used.

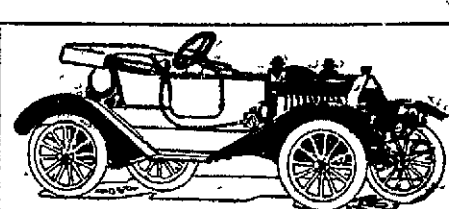

The cowpea is revolutionizing farming in some parts of the south. It is used in much the same way as we use the soy bean, to build up land while growing a crop of corn; and the cotton following this practice is much heavier than without using the cowpea.

After we cut our corn in September, the soy beans can be allowed to stand for turning under, or the hogs or cattle can be turned in on them; or they can be cut and fed green to dairy cattle.

Vetch can be pastured late in the fall and again in the spring; and this gives it a decided advantage over the soy beans. But, in view of the present cost of seed, of the fact that the humus from the soy bean is so promptly available, and that the seeding of the soy bean so readily conforms to our present system of cultivating corn, it is believed that the soy bean should be selected as the plant with which to do the cover crop work; at least for the present.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Communication From Correspondent at National Capital

TARIFF THE REAL ISSUE

The Increased Price of Coal—Commerce Court Abandoned—Clearing House Robbing Country Banks.

Washington, June 17.—Why is the Republican party beset by its present difficulties? This question can be answered with one word—tariff.

The tariff was originally employed to meet the expense of the Civil War. To raise money for this emergency the government decided to tax every article of manufacture. The American manufacturers complained of this, and justly. They said the taxes were so heavy as to be ruinous, because they could not compete with imported articles which did not have to carry this tax. So a plan was devised to protect the American manufacturers.

"We will place a tariff on all imported articles," said the government, "which will put you on an even or better-than-even footing with your foreign competitors."

Everyone understood this protective system was to be but temporary, to meet an unusual condition, and that the tariff on imports would be abolished when it became no longer necessary to require the American manufacturers to pay a tax on their manufactures.

But in the meantime the privileged few had discovered that in the tariff lay a means by which they could build up enormous fortunes. These fortunes were pointed to as an evidence that the tariff was a good thing. The protectionists fooled the people by making them believe that these fortunes had come from "the foreigners," when the fact was that the fortunes had been wrung from the common people who had been forced to pay artificially high prices for the things necessary to life.

The protectionists knew in their hearts of this deception, and then there did humbug and fraud become part and parcel of politics. But the people have learned at last that tariff for protection, that a tariff for any other purpose than to raise sufficient revenue to meet the expense of the government, has no excuse in logic or economics. It needs no argument to convince the average man now that to reduce taxation is to reduce prices.

From the first, the manufacturers have never been satisfied with a reasonable amount of protection, but they keep on demanding more and more. The result is that the American consumers are today paying dividends on a trust capitalization of thirty-three billion dollars, seventy per cent of which is water, while American working men and women, particularly those who labor for the most highly protected trusts, are receiving wages as low as $6, $7 and $8 a week.

And this is the reason why the Republican party is beset by its present difficulties.

Coal Barons Greedy

Preparations are being made to add $15,000,000 to the nation's coal bill this winter. Each one of us must contribute our pro rata to the fortunes of the coal barons. There is no reason or justice for the extent of the increase, except that the millionaire coal kings want the money and are in a position to make the people either "come across" or freeze.

The coal operators, who have been forced to grant the miners an increase in wages, which they say will mean an additional cost of $5,000,000 in labor, are going to force the consumer to pay a sufficiently high price for coal to enable them to stand this increase, along with an additional extortion of $10,000,000, which will be clear profit to the trust. Thus for every dollar in increased prices that the coal operators propose to collect this winter for the miners, they have decided to extort two dollars for themselves. All we helpless consumers have to do is to pay the bill. Always, always, it is the consumer who pays!

Exit the Commerce Court

The death knell of the Commerce Court, which made a specialty of reversing the decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission whenever those decisions were in the interest of shippers and consumers, and of sustaining the Commerce Commission whenever its decisions were favorable to the railroads, has been sounded. The Democratic House voted it out of existence, and a coalition of progressive Republicans and Democrats in the Senate has sustained the House.

Milking the Country Banks

Manager Scherer of the New York Clearing House testified to many things before the Money Trust investigating committee that will cause the country banks to sit up and take notice. The clearing house was shown to be composed of fifty New York banks. No bank with a capital stock amounting to less than $1,000,000 is eligible to membership.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 12-14

Mr. Scherer's testimony revealed a system by which the New York banks gouge the country banks and their clients out of millions.

He said that it costs seven cents per $1,000 to collect the checks of country banks. The Clearing House, he said, collects 70 cents per $1,000, or ten times the real cost.

The average charge per day for collections is about $80,000. It amounts to about $50,000,000 a year. From this heeding process the fifty banks comprising the clearing house association extorted sufficient tribute from the country bankers last year to enable each of the fifty New York banks to pay an eight per cent. dividend on their capital stock.

Thus it becomes apparent to every fair-minded person why the New York City banks and financial magnates so bitterly opposed the investigation by Congress of the Money Trust. C. H. Travenner.

Golf Clubs—Past and Present

The game of golf twenty-five to forty years ago was more a game of scientific persuasion than sheer force; nowadays it is the scientific application of force, and for this change the alteration in the shape and balance of the club head due to the introduction of the "bulger" is almost altogether responsible. With the old-fashioned club it would have been quite impossible for a player to hit as hard as the majority of the players do nowadays, and at the same time hope to attain even a mediocrity of accuracy; he would have been here, there and everywhere.—Harold Hilton in the July Outing.

DRAWN OUT POISON

Marvelous Antiseptic that Draws Glass, Wood and Needles From the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing ointment as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by Ed. D. Heckerman to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies such as bruises, burns, cuts or scalds, because it kills the pain instantly. It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand. 25c and 50c a jar at Ed. D. Heckerman's.

To indulge all pleasing amusements and avoid all images that give disgust is, in my opinion, the best method to attain or confirm health."

Mrs. J. E. Henry, Akron, Mich., tells how she did so: "I was bothered with my kidneys and had to go nearly double. I tried a sample of Foley Kidney Pills and they did me so much good that I bought a bottle, and feel that they saved me a big doctor's bill." E. D. Heckerman.

SPEEDING THROUGH BOROUGH

Incorporated Towns Invited to Join a Protective Association.

From the average speed at which autos rush through this borough it is fair to assume that constables elsewhere are as neglectful of their duty as here. Otherwise autos coming through here would slack speed to comply with our signs. As it is, not a third of them keep within the legal limit of 12 miles and nearly a third of them run through at a speed of thirty miles an hour or more.

The brutal disregard of human life and limb which makes a driver speed his car at a rate dangerous to the old and helpless and to thoughtless children makes me yearn for those good old days of Colorado and Arizona, when they used to take out such undesirable citizens and inconspicuously hang them to the most convenient tree. Such recklessness does not lay a foundation for a charge of murder; it is always involuntary manslaughter. And it usually means a fine or a compromise. The criminal goes on his way a little stunned, perhaps; is a trifle inconvenienced in the matter of cash,—but it is really the procession to the little graveyard on the hill that measures the tragedy wrought by a dehumanized fool.

Moreover, the dust from these speeding autos fills our lungs and our houses; and thus between choking and housecleaning our lives are rendered unnecessarily burdensome.

I am not speaking as a malcontent or sorehead. I have an auto myself. I am confident that the whole countryside is going to reap financial benefit through the closer drawing together of city and country due to the automobile. I am not against the auto, but decidedly for it. And I have a profound respect for the man who, driving his machine through the country village, slows up to protect his fellowmen. It is the insistent instinct of the gentleman overcoming a perfectly human tendency to speed, a survival in the autoist of the same sporting instinct that makes a good man put a good horse through his paces. But in the one case the sporting tendency is subordinated to a regard for the lives and safety of others; and in the other it is simply the brazen flaunting of wealth not yet divorced from vulgarity.

The Pennsylvania Automobile Law of 1909 provides for arrests, fines and revocations of licenses; and the fines are heavier for offenses after the first.

The law is good enough for the purpose; it only remains to find ways of making it effective. The plan I have in mind for this purpose is about as follows:

1. To organize an informal Borough Protective Association.
2. To have each borough an active member of the association.
3. To organize in such a way that no borough could be financially liable for anything but its own acts.
4. To have the Borough Council put up proper signs and notices and appoint some person to report violations of speed laws to the protective Association. To keep a record of all such reports under a simple card index system.
5. To have all Justices of the Peace report to the Association the names, addresses, car numbers, etc., of all persons convicted by them of violation of speed laws; and to record this also.
6. To provide each borough with practical methods of determining the speed at which an auto is running through the borough.
7. To send the owner of the car a clear warning upon his first reported violation of the speed limit in any borough, together with a statement that this fact had been recorded by the association in its permanent records.
8. For a second violation to institute at once proper proceedings to enforce payment of a fine; and to assist the borough in its proceedings to collect such a fine.
9. For a third violation, or habitual violation, to apply the extreme penalty of the law in the matter of fine, and institute proceedings for revocation of the license.
10. To keep each borough posted in the matter of its legal protection against auto-speeding.
11. To use all proper means in procuring proper protective legislation.
12. To aid private citizens in their efforts to procure the co-operation of the Borough Council, or, if the Council refuses to act, in organizing a local association for the purpose.

The strength of the plan lies, of course, in the systematic, co-operative effort to rid ourselves of a menace and a nuisance. The man who has the speed habit, if we keep records from various parts of the state, is soon going to find himself in serious trouble, as the black marks accumulate.

If you who read this article, feel as some of us do here, write me a letter and say so; and get your borough council interested. Suggestions will be welcome. The plan should be thorough and comprehensive.

I am convinced that if this idea is followed out and a determined effort made, we will succeed more promptly than we imagine. The situation is serious, the danger always here with us; and it is getting worse from day to day. Don't consider it as a matter for your local council to attend to. Death is no respecter of persons; and I think we all owe it to our families and our neighbors to consider this as a personal duty. Certainly good citizenship requires that some drastic action be taken and the nuisance abated. A. B. Ross.

Schellsburg, Pa., June 17, 1912.

TAFT IN CONTROL

gress Hotel was in the Florentine room. The meeting was called to order by Ex-Senator Flinn of Pennsylvania. It was necessary for him to rap for order several times before he could be heard. He said:

"Gentlemen: Sixty-two of the 64 of the Pennsylvania delegation have voted to leave this convention. We spent two hours discussing the proposition. They say their duty is more important than any they may have in November. You delegates have witnessed the action of the National Convention. If this thing is to continue, we might as well quit holding National Conventions and turn it over to Penrose, Murphy, and 'Big Steve' and the rest of their kind. It is bad enough to have to fight them in every state and every insular possession, but it is worse to have to go up against a bunch like this. I am going out of this convention at the time fixed by Theodore Roosevelt," shouted Flinn. "I am going to follow that great and wonderful man."

Immediately following this announcement by Flinn there was a disturbance at the door and Roosevelt entered escorted by policemen. His face was scowling. He walked through the crowd which shouted its welcome, and mounted the platform. "I am going to ask you to take a recess until I can get certain facts," said Roosevelt. "I ask you not to enter into a discussion until I am able to put certain facts before you. I can tell you the general outline of how I intend to act. I don't intend to abide by the decision of the majority of the convention created by fraudulent delegates. They are not the convention of the Republican party. I am for a convention in which sit the men elected by such states as Washington and Arizona and not men appointed by the defunct bosses of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kansas and Massachusetts. This is not a case of a mere factional fight."

"I hold the time has come when we must assert the right of the people to own the National Convention. Fraud destroys anything. No ordinary precedent applies in the case of conspiracy. I hold it is clear as day that the members of the late National Committee determined to seat enough of the Taft delegates not elected to destroy the anti-Taft majority elected by the people. Now, gentlemen, I should like to ask you to come back later. Can you come back later?"

"You bet we can," went up a shout from all over the lower part of the hall.

"Very well, gentlemen, it is now 11:30; suppose you come back here at 12:30. I have certain things to look up and certain facts to ascertain. I want to lay them before you."

Roosevelt jumped from the platform and was hurried through a side door by the police. He immediately entered his headquarters and went into conference.

At noon yesterday the convention met and adjourned till 4 o'clock (5 o'clock in our time) to give the committees time to prepare their reports.

BEDFORD LOST ANOTHER

This Time to the Boys From the Big Borough.

Last Friday, Soldiers' Reunion Day, Bedford and Everett baseball teams met for the first time this season at Northside Park when Everett won by the score of 6 to 4. Bedford scored a run in the second inning and Everett scored one in the third. Neither side scored again until the eighth inning when Everett made three runs; they also scored two in the ninth. The Bedford boys rallied in the ninth inning and scored three runs on four hits. They hit the ball hard during the entire game but usually drove it right into an Everett fielder's hands. The features of the game were the pitching of Slack, he having 16 strikeouts, and the batting of Horne, who had a single, a two-bagger and a three-bagger, and scored two runs. The score follows:

Ought to Paint

I ought to have painted last year, but I hated to pay $2.25 a gallon. I've got to paint this year; it'll take a little more paint; I suppose 1 gallon in 10; and a little more work, I suppose 1 day in 10.

My job would have cost last year about $52.50; it is going to cost this year $57.75.

$5.25 gone. I suppose it'll be the same again, if I wait again.

What if paint goes down to $2 a gallon? $2.50 on the job!

I shan't wait; what a fool I was!

Children's Services

The Sunday School of the Church of God at Coaldale held Children's services last Sunday evening. The house was filled with eager listeners. The music was led by J. E. Shuke. Several fine selections were rendered. A duet by Mrs. Myrtle Musser and Miss Lulu Roarabaugh was among the features of the evening. Miss Preta Roarabaugh presided at the organ. The program was prepared by Misses Adda Workman and Lillian Rankin and reflected credit on the committee and on all taking part. William Lewis is superintendent of the school which is in a flourishing condition. It holds services each Sunday at 9:30 a. m.

Carberry-Whited

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Caleb Whited of Broad Top Township Wednesday evening, June 12, when his daughter, Miss Laura C. was married to Daniel Q. Carberry of Saxton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. W. McGuire. Miss Lillian Rankin played the wedding march. After the ceremony a sumptuous supper was served. Both bride and groom are young people of excellent character and the best wishes of many friends are extended.

Among the guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Brinton Cutchall, Mr. and Mrs. David Fluke, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Reese, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McDonald, William Lewis, Helen J. Cutchall, Gluecia Cutchall, Cathryn Cutchall, Mrs. Maggie Barton and Mrs. Emerson Whited, of Duquesne; Mrs. Albert Whited, Mrs. C. Prosser, Mrs. Minerva Whited, Mrs. Sidna Carberry and Mrs. F. W. McGuire, of Saxton; Marshall Rankin, Charles Edwards, Sue Davis, Susan Carberry, Reba Barton, Elsie Thomas, Adda Workman and Cathryn Rogers.

SOLDIERS' REUNION

the cotton-fields sweetened the languorous air of the South. The country was at rest and all was quiet and still,—perhaps an ominous stillness like that which precedes the crashing of a mighty storm through the forest bringing death and destruction in its train. A spirit of unrest creeps over the people and the quiet air is rocked by murmurs of discontent which grow stronger and sharper until a united people is severed in twain by the keen edge of secession, and a gun trained on Fort Sumpter arouses a sleeping nation, and a chief executive issues his call for arms and for men to fight the good fight for humanity, for constitution, for country and for God. Heard then the iron-throated bells in the steeples sounding out their roaring summons to war, to war, to war! Heard then the sharp, shrill notes of the slender fife,—Fight the fight! Fight the fight! Heard then the steady, sombre summons of the rolling drums of battle and of warfare,—On to the fore! On to the fore! Heard then a nation's head calling for fathers, for sons, for citizens, for soldiers, who would rise to the defense of righteousness and for the preservation of the land, and who would shoulder the musket, don the blue, swing the shining sword, and fight the good fight! Then how the fever ran through the land! How the call to duty struck a responsive chord in the breasts of our fathers and our friends! How the appeal to duty made father and son and brother and friend lay aside the peaceful implements of husbandry and of toil, stand out one day in beautiful garments of blue with here and there the flash of buttons of gold, say farewell to the old homestead, and march away to the stirring strains of the dread drums of war and the files of fearful battle,—away to the fields of blood, away to the scenes of slaughter, away to hardship and to battle and to determine strife.

And memory will tell you that one day, when the strife was done, the army came marching back to the beloved Northland. For two days, May 23rd and 24th, 1865, they marched through Washington, two hundred thousand laurel-crowned veterans, fresh from the smoke of conflict, seared by the scenes of battle, scarred and worn by the shock of deadly strife. And then the army melted away, the soldier became the citizen, the glittering sword was exchanged for the prosaic plowshare, and the field of battle for the peaceful counting-house and shop.

Memory will tell you of another Grand Army, the Grand Army of the Dead, sleeping in the windowless palaces of the departed, resting under the deep, cool shadows of the pines of a country churchyard, dreaming eternally along the banks of the Potomac and the Mississippi, lulled to slumber by the requiem of the surging, swelling waters of the mighty deep. Over all of whom today we whisper the song of the soldier's dirge:

"Fold him in his country's stars,
Roll the drum, and fire the volley;
What to him are all our wars—
What but death bemocking folly?
Lay him low, lay him low,
In the clover or the snow;
What cares he? he cannot know:
Lay him low!"

But today, Soldiers, Citizens, Friends, we regard you not only as men with many a precious memory, but we measure you as men swayed by peerless motives, motives as clear as crystal and as beautiful as sunlight. So deeply have you loved this land that you have caught the infinite pathos of the story that has become one of the classics of our American literature,—"The Man Without a Country." You have felt the call to your own spirit in the sentence which I have read in "The Soldier's Pocket-Book" given to me by one of the Boys in Blue from the eastern part of our state: "Attention! Comrades, we are enlisted for the war and we fight the battles of our country, not for mere pay, but because we love our free and noble government, which has protected our rights and made our nation respected over the whole world." And you have acknowledged the mighty logic of the stirring lines of Scott:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
'This is my own, my native land?'"

He, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung."

So, too, the love of liberty swept you on,—that popular liberty, born amid the din of battle, baptized with patriot blood, and rocked in the rude cradle of a civil strife. It was in defense of this liberty that Henry Ward Beecher achieved his most notable feat of eloquence in England. During the war the South sent men of eminence to England to arouse a sentiment in favor of the Confederacy. To meet this Beecher was sent to England to preach and to speak. When he landed in Liverpool the friends of the South were ready for him. The great hall was packed to the uttermost, largely with men who did not sympathize with him and his cause, and with those who had been hired to break-up the meeting. When he entered the hall it was pandemonium let loose. Into the rear of the hall he came, and down through the middle aisle in the midst of his enemies he slowly walked. I can almost see him now as he braced himself, brook that mane of his, walked slowly to the front and climbed the platform. He took off his overcoat deliberately and put it and his hat on a chair; he tested a reading desk that stood in the middle, found it loose, and carried it out of the way. Then he turned, walked slowly to the front, faced the whirlwind in a minute, and then said in a voice that went through that yelling like a cannon-ball through a cotton-field: "Boys, this ain't fair!" The mob forgot to yell for a moment when he hurled upon them the most wonderful sentence that ever fell from the lips of men,—a sentence that was never recorded, a sentence that was never reframed, a sentence that the speaker himself felt to be divinely inspired, a sentence to the British sense of fair play and of justice,—and then sentence after sentence crying for liberty and for freedom, and the hisses died away, and the cheers rent the air for that freedom that we love and cherish and revere.

And I am persuaded that you were swayed also by the love of God. God, whom you recognized as the author of the liberty for which you were ready to make the dear sacrifice of your very lives; God, who is, notwithstanding assertions sometimes made to the contrary, recognized in the Magna Charta of the land, the Declaration of Independence, the phrase, "firm reliance upon Divine Providence;" and God, more recently recognized in the utterance of our highest tribunal, the Supreme Court, in the Trinity Church Case, in the words, "This is a Christian nation."

And today, Soldiers, Citizens, Friends, we regard you not only as men rich with the treasures of priceless memories, and men swayed by the clearest and most peerless of motives, but also as men among men, walking like kings crowned with crowns of the purest gold in our midst. Today I am honored in being permitted to tell you that we shroud your casket, not only with the historic stars and stripes, but also with the flowers of a nation's deepest affection and highest regard, for we look to you as living examples of truest patriots whose footsteps, we pray God, our sons may ever care to follow.

Today we look to you to plunge into the thick of the conflict of our modern life with its problems of church and of commonwealth and of state. And I bring good hope to you out of the past and for the present and for the days which are yet to come in the sentence of Benjamin Franklin to George Washington, told in John Fisk's "Critical Period of American History." At the close of the convention which drafted the Declaration of Independence Franklin arose and addressed Washington: "As I have sat here during the hours of our deliberations I have often wondered, sir, whether the wooden sun carved upon the back of your chair was a rising or a setting sun, but I am now persuaded that it is a rising sun."

When the French army under Napoleon advanced up the Nile and came in sight of the Pyramids, they beheld the strongly entrenched hosts of the Egyptians with their heavy artillery trained upon them. The hearts of the French soldiers sank at so formidable a spectacle, but the keen eye of their leader detected what none of his followers saw, that the cannon of the enemy had no carriages and that, therefore, they could fire in but one direction. And the great Napoleon, flashing his sword before their eyes, cried: "Soldiers! Forty centuries are looking down upon you from yonder pyramids! Forward, by the right flank!" And on they went to victory. But today, Soldiers, Citizens, Friends! You with your memories so rich with the priceless heritage of a treasured past; you with your motives, as clear as the crystal and as pure as the sunlight; you who have walked like kings in our midst, crowned with a nation's regard and a nation's love; Soldiers, Citizens, Friends! All eternity is looking down upon you from yonder heights to see that you do your duty, holding aloft with this starry flag, as you scale the mound of every difficulty, the gleaming cross of the Crucified,—for the cross is the stars and stripes of Jesus Christ!

On Little Peak

A Story of a Western Blizzard

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When they rode up to the gate their young faces seemed to reflect the glory of the sunset. Owen Morgan's was aglow with love and pride, and Annie Bell's was pink flushed and shyly happy.

Annie's father, Peter Bell, saw them coming and strode across the yard with thunder in his voice and lightning in his eyes.

"You clear out of this, young fellow!" he growled as he snatched the bridle of Annie's pony and led the animal away. "You're done about all the mooning around these diggings that's allowed by me—see?"

"Father!" cried Annie indignantly, snatching at the bridle rein.

For reply the gruff old man lifted his daughter's slender form from the saddle and pushed her toward the house. "Go inside and stay there till I come," he added, and because Peter Bell's word was law in his house Annie went, with a single heartbreaking glance at her recently declared lover.

Owen Morgan stared after her with eyes that saw not. The whole scene appeared to be some grotesque comedy that was being enacted for his benefit. Perhaps he was expected to laugh at Peter Bell's joke.

"Understand—you?" rasped Peter Bell unpleasantly.

"You mean it?" Owen managed to ask, with stiff lips. "You mean that I'm not to come and see Annie again?"

"That's just what I do mean! Why, you must think I'm a fool to let you run after my girl after the way your father has treated me!"

"You mean about the boundary line?" asked Owen, wheezing his horse about.

"Yes, I mean about the boundary line!" roared Peter. "When them papers was served on me this afternoon I vowed this would be the last ride your father's son ever took with my girl. Now that's all plain, and you're invited to go."

Owen's face was very white and his lips were compressed to a straight line as he rode home at breakneck speed. His own father was smoking in the porch of the ranch house, and the old man's calm demeanor served in a measure to cool Owen's wrath at Peter Bell.

"Careful, lad!" warned Mr. Morgan as his son brought the dripping horse to a standstill. "Don't you know how to treat a beast, Owen? Take Brownie and give him a rubdown and come back to me."

Although Owen was twenty-four, he obeyed his father as meekly as though he were still in his early teens. After he had made the reeking horse as comfortable as possible for the time he walked slowly back to the veranda, where his father sat enveloped in overcoat and hat, for it was January and the thermometer had been near to 20 degrees all day. Now it was a little milder, for the wind had died down. The sunset clouds had lost their delicate colors even as Owen's face had lost its glow of happiness.

"It's going to snow," prophesied Mr. Morgan, with an eye turned toward the weather.

"Then I ought to get that bunch of cattle in from the lower range," remarked Owen rather listlessly.

"Morning will be time enough where you been—riding with Annie?" Owen's face reddened to the ears, and he avoided his father's searching eyes.

"Yes," he replied constrainedly.

"Have a good ride."

"Went over to the Little Peak."

"Hum—same place I went with you ma once. It ended in our getting engaged."

"It didn't end that way with me, dad." Owen's eyes still sought the distant horizon.

"Tut!" Mr. Morgan's carefully balanced chair came down on all four legs, and he looked with concern at his son's handsome, downcast face.

"Why, I would have staked my eye that Annie—" He paused helplessly.

"She does?" was Owen's significant reply.

"And you, lad?"

"So do I!"

"Then—what—why?"

"Peter Bell kicked me out—practically—before I even had a chance to ask him—or anything. Just told me to get out and stay out."

"Why?" demanded Mr. Morgan, although he had guessed.

"He said you've served papers on him in a suit over that boundary line."

"What did you say to him?"

"Nothing. There wasn't anything I could say under the circumstances."

Annie's his daughter, and he's got the right to say who's coming to see her."

"Leave it to me, Owen, lad. I'll chuck the whole boundary business if it will help any. I don't want you and Annie to be—"

"It's all right, dad. Maybe he'll get over it," said Owen, although he doubted Peter Bell's repentance over such a small matter as that of dismissing one of Annie Bell's suitors. Annie Bell was young, but there had always been suitors for her pretty hand and tender heart. The heart had belonged to Owen Morgan ever since she had discovered that she possessed such a troublesome organ, but Owen had waited until Annie had returned from the boarding school in Denver before asking this question.

The next morning, just before noon, came the beginning of the snowstorm. Owen ate a hasty dinner and, mounting his sturdiest pony, set out for the lower range to gather in a small bunch of cattle that had been left there to graze on the sparse herbage that might be found in sheltered nooks.

Shortly after he started the plain was obliterated from view by the thickly falling flakes, but his pony knew the trail and seemed to realize that perhaps their lives depended upon his speed, for he raced across the whitening earth with undiminished speed until the frightened herd of cattle was located and started on its homeward way.

It was harder going back to the ranch. The snow was driving in their faces now and clung moistly to every inch of exposed surface. Just as the last frightened beast was driven into the corral and Jose, the Mexican stableman, had closed the gates there came the sound of shouting from the front of the ranch house.

By the time Owen had floundered around there he knew the shouting voice to be that of Peter Bell, and he wondered what sudden accession of anger had driven the old man forth in the midst of what promised to be a blizzard.

But Peter Bell was not angry. He was a terrified and grief stricken old man, who was being thawed out before the big coal stove in the sitting room of the ranch. Mrs. Morgan was holding a cup of something hot and steaming to his bearded lips, while Owen's father was pulling on fur lined boots with great haste.

"What is the matter?" demanded Owen, standing in the doorway.

"It's Annie—she went out for a ride before the storm and she hasn't returned," explained Mrs. Morgan quickly. "All of the Bell ranch men are away, and so Mr. Bell came over to see if you and father wouldn't help."

"Of course I don't deserve it after what I said to you yesterday," broke in Peter Bell tremulously, "but—"

"Which direction did she take?" interrupted Owen ruthlessly.

"Toward Little Peak. I warned her it was going to snow, but she said she'd be right back. It's a bad trail, you know, Owen," ended Peter Bell pitifully.

"I'll bring her back," promised Owen confidently. "You have everything ready to thaw us out when we come, and, mother, just give me a flask of that brandy in case—in case Annie should be pretty cold."

A little shudder ran through the older people. They knew the chances of finding Annie Bell cold—cold in death—were very strong. But Owen, fired by his great love, would leave no place unexplored. If any one could find the girl it would be the man who loved her.

Owen's mother kissed him and the two men gripped his hand as he closed the door behind him. Jose had brought around one of the farm horses, a great heavy animal, whose enormous strength could better combat the snow than the lighter animals.

Out of sight of the ranch house, all bearings were lost in the white world of snow. A small pocket compass warmed in his hand guided him to the westward, where Little Peak reared its height.

The trail up the mountain side was narrow and precarious in fair weather. Owen, strong as he was, shuddered as he thought of Annie Bell riding down there in the face of the first flying flakes. Even if she reached the foot of the peak there was the deep canyon to ride through, and if her pony stumbled—why, he did not dare to think of the soft mound of snow that might even now cover pretty Annie Bell, who only yesterday had whispered that she loved him. It had happened on this very self same peak, and Annie had gone back there today!

Owen struck the horse sharply, and the big body heaved convulsively forward, and the great hoofs dashed through the fast forming drifts. They covered the three miles to the canyon in a half hour, and Owen was another thirty minutes finding the narrow entrance. There was not a foot of ground that he had not scanned with his eyes as he rode, and his voice had been lifted in continuous shouting, but so far only the dumb silence of the muddling snow had answered him.

In the ranch house Mrs. Morgan had completed her preparation for the restoration of the half frozen ones when they returned unless—there should be two lost instead of one. Owen's mother was holding her husband's hand, and his other hand was unconsciously gripped by Peter Bell, who had forgotten his anger over the boundary fence and had become the father of the missing Annie—and that was all.

"Hark!" cried Peter Bell after three hours had passed in agonizing silence. There was no audible sound, but an instant later the outer door burst open and Owen staggered in, holding a snow wreathed burden in his arms.

"She's alive!" he panted. "Take her—I can get along all right!" and to prove that he could Owen Morgan gave Annie Bell safely into her father's arms and sank unconscious to the floor.

When Owen awoke between hot blankets, with a restorative burning its way down his throat, his first thought was for Annie Bell. At his first stir in came Peter Bell, leading Annie by the hand. She was pale, but her eyes shone happily.

"Owen, lad," said Peter Bell in a shaking voice, "you saved my girl's life, and it belongs to you. I give her back to you!"

A good way to avoid getting the fingers inky, if one has a tendency that way, is to save the fingers of discarded kid gloves and keep them in the writing desk, slipping one over the middle finger and another, if necessary, over the forefinger, when sitting down to write. This often saves time and annoyance when a note has to be written just before going out.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XII.—Second Quarter,
For June 23, 1912.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke vii, 36-50.

Memory Verses, 37, 38 or 40—Golden Text, I Tim, i, 15, R. V.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This anointing of Jesus by a penitent woman is recorded only by Luke. There is another anointing later in His ministry which is recorded by Matthew, Mark and John, but not by Luke. That was at Bethany, and Mary, the sister of Martha, anointed Him for his burial. This was probably at Nain, and the name of the woman is not given. Both anointings were in the houses of men called Simon, but the one is called Simon the Pharisee and the other Simon the leper. In today's lesson the woman washed His feet with penitential tears, wiped them with her hair, kissed them and anointed them. At Bethany Mary anointed His head as well as His feet, but there is no record of her washing them. They are manifestly two wholly different incidents at different times and in different places, but Jesus Christ Himself is the center in each, as He is in all the Bible, and everywhere and at all times revealing God the Father. In our lesson He is in the house of one who knew Him not nor treated Him with comports courtesy, as we learn from the words of Jesus in verses 44-45, "Then gavest me no water for my feet; thou gavest me no kiss; my head with oil thou didst not anoint." At Bethany He was in the house of those who loved him. This Pharisee reminds us of the one in chapter xlviii, 11, 12, and in verse 30 of our lesson chapter we read that "the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves." In chapter xvi, 14, it is said that the Pharisees derided Him and His teaching. He went wherever He could do good and heal a sin sick soul or a diseased body, never thinking of Himself or of His unkind treatment by others. He did not hesitate to touch the world in any form for its good, but He was as separate from it as light from darkness. He came to save sinners, to seek and to save the lost, and, inasmuch as He Himself said, "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth" (Luke xv, 20). He was no doubt full of joy when He found any one like this woman, or the woman of Samaria, or Nicodemus, or Zaccheus, or the penitent thief, willing to be saved. Perhaps she had heard His "Come unto me" or His words to another, "Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole" (Matt. xi, 28; ix, 22). Somehow she had heard and believed and had wasted her opportunity to thank Him. Now it had come within her reach, and she hastened to do all that was in her heart. It mattered not to her that the house was that of Simon the Pharisee; she was not thinking of either Simon or his house, but of just one person who had made her blind to all but Himself. She knew her sin better than Simon did, and so did He to whom she had now come. How unusual such tears and such devotion, and how refreshing all must have been to Him. She washed His feet with her tears, but He had washed her soul by His precious blood, soon to be shed for her. See her humility, at His feet behind Him; see her contrition, weeping over His feet and thinking how her own had wandered. Some one has said that the essence of her heart was distilled to bathe His feet and the glory of her head unbound to furnish Him with a towel. Had she kingdoms to give they would have been laid at His feet, but she did her best, and He accepted. She did not send by another. She rendered personal gratitude. She was so occupied with Him that Simon's frowns were nothing to her. There is no record of a word she uttered; but, oh, how the tears, the disheveled hair, the precious ointment, did talk for her! She had no thought of calling any one's attention to her; she cared for no one's opinion; she was endeavoring to thank Him. He accepted her gratitude. He looked at her, He took her part. He spoke to her and said to her, "Thy sins are forgiven; thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace" (verses 48, 50). Her name we know not, but it is written in heaven (Luke x, 20). May the joy of sins forgiven be a reality to us and a whole soul devotion to Him be seen in our daily lives. Simon thought that he knew her, but that Jesus did not know her, whereas Jesus knew both of them as they did not know themselves. He would have saved Simon as readily as He did the woman if Simon had confessed himself a sinner, but there is neither salvation nor a Saviour for self righteous people. He came not to call the righteous, those who think they are righteous, but for all who know themselves sinners and bankrupt there is salvation. Many who are called Christians seem never to have been forgiven much, for there is no devotion to Him in their lives. How very different the devotion of this one, the woman of Samaria, or Paul, or Peter, or John! Why are we not constrained by such love as His? Do we know Him?

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD

No Other Newspaper in the World Gives so Much at so Low a Price.

The great political campaigns are now at hand, and you want the news accurately and promptly. The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features, serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first-class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Gazette, together for one year for $2.20. The regular price of the two papers is $2.50.

A healthy man is a king in his own right; an unhealthy man an unhappy slave. For impure blood and sluggish liver, use Burdock Blood Bitters. On the market 35 years. $1.00 a bottle.

FOR SALE

Grain and Stock Farm in Fulton County, containing 300 acres of cleared and well-cultivated land, 200 acres of mountain land well-timbered with chestnut and 150 acres that have been chopped over and is easy to clear—smooth land and no stones.

The soil is deep red shale underlaid with limestone; fertile and well adapted to general farming. Good limestone quarry in centre of tract.
This can be made one of the best grain and grass producing farms in the state.

The farm is well watered by never-failing springs and a fine trout stream runs through it, making excellent for stock raising.

Dames of Malta Entertained

On Thursday June 13, about 20 ladies of the Myrtle Sisterhood of the Dames of Malta of Six Mile Run were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mallie Thomas, of Round Knob.

The evening was spent in singing, playing music and chatting, and at a late hour all were served with dainty lunch prepared by the hostess, consisting of strawberries and cream, cakes and lemonade.

Those present were: Mrs. Harriet
Figard, Mrs. Helen Cutchall, Mrs.
Johnson, Mrs. Lizzie Debaugh, Mrs.
Rose Garinger, Mrs. Clara Smith,
Mrs. Alice Nicholson, Mrs. Janet
Figard, Mrs. Mary Lynn, Mrs. Gertrude Thomas, Mrs. Annie Davis, Mrs.
Emily Barton, Mrs. Annie Abbott,
Mrs. Annie Snyder, Mrs. Nora Reese,
Mrs. Mary Williams, Mrs. Jennie
Foor, Miss Amelia Smith, Miss Williams and Mrs. Maud Figard.

Mrs. Helen Cutchall sang a pretty selection entitled "The Bird With a Broken Wing," which was appreciated by all. After thanking the host and hostess for their kindness and hospitality, all returned to the homes reporting having spent a pleasant evening.

Farming and Banking

Farmers in increasing numbers are finding a bank account a great aid and convenience to them. Paying bills by check is handier and safer than paying in cash. It is simple, too, and without expense.
Your account, small or large,
will have careful attention at this bank.

Disconcerted by Sneezes

The world has now well-nigh forgotten M. Vivier, the once famous French-horn player, who was so unnerved by the late Lord Houghton's blowing his nose at a critical moment of his performance that he threw up all his London engagements. "Ah," he would say after this, "the English have terrible noses. They remind you of the day of judgment."
